2015-16

From the General Secretary's Desk

The Annual Report, 2015-16 honestly depicts in nutshell the activities carried out during the year that were possible due to our relentless endeavour in bringing the holistic development of the masses-weaker and underprivileged sections of the society. The activities encompassed a broad canvass through education, awareness, advocacy, promotion, capacity building and empowerment in line with the organisation's cherished goals and objectives.

Twenty two years have already passed since we started our noble effort in 1994 towards ameliorating the lots of the poor and deprived sections of the society with specific thrust on women, children, youths poor and needy people. Over the years we had to persistently work hard to improve the standard of living of the masses through our intervention in activity areas of health, sanitation, education, child rights, women empowerment, youth empowerment, environment protection, road safety, petroleum conservation and renewable energy, yoga & naturopathy, science and technology etc. braving all odds, for which I must acknowledge the sincere effort of our staff and volunteers. This year also they have worked vigorously to achieve the desired objectives.

As ever, in the current year, 2015-16 also we have tried to improve the conditions of target masses in our project areas for which we had to identify their basic needs and work towards achieving the target by participatory and holistic approach and in turn, kindled hopes in their lives through empowerment, awareness and promotional programmes. There were both continuing and new areas of activities, the prominent among which included the awareness programme on climate change and related issues, promotion of science technology for the youth, education and awareness on environment, consumer and legal awareness, training programmes on youth leadership and community development, skill training for employment promotion, programmes on road safety and awareness and conservation of energy.

We have arranged the activities undertaken during the reporting period chronologically and presented them in this report in readable language. However, valuable suggestions from readers are most welcome to improve our focus, potential and plan our goals more ardently for the burning issue.

Finally, I must convey my gratitude to our dignified associates like Government and Non-Government agencies, funding agencies, donor agencies, promoters, members, staffs, well-wishers and who have supported us to go ahead. Specially our great indebtedness is due to Dr. Sangram Keshari Nayak, former Principal Scientist CRRI, Mr. Lombador Mishra, and other consultants and advisor of Women & Child Welfare Society for their valuable suggestions all time.

Mrs.Minati Bindhani,
General Secretary
Women & Child Welfare Society
Cuttack.

The Organization

Women and Child Welfare Society (WCWS), with its headquarters located in the city of Cuttack, is a not-for-profit organization working towards the overall development of deprived communities--the poor and marginalised sections of the society in the State. Working for the last two decades to ameliorate the condition of poor and deprived classes, the initiatives undertaken by the Society are specially directed to bring wellbeing for women, children, youths and general public in the broader perspective with active community participation.

Though registered on September 23, 1995 under the Societies Act, 1860, the organisation had come into being in January, 1994 with relentless efforts and active involvement of some young volunteers coming together for the socio-economic uplift of the vulnerable and weaker sections of the society, especially women, children youths and general public with the aim of improving their quality of life in a holistic manner which over the years, have encompassed activities permeating the fields of health, education, science and technology, sanitation, environmental protection, road safety, energy conservation, women empowerment, child rights, climate change, youth empowerment, self employment, awareness generation and conservation of resources consistent with the norms of sustainable development. The organisation acts as a unique resource agency which bridges the gap between public welfare schemes and the disadvantaged sections of the society.

Creating awareness among the masses on issues concerning their development, empowering the weaker sections and providing much needed fillip to them in matters directly linked to their development have been the prime efforts made by our volunteers and staff.

Mission, Vision etc

Mission:

To empower the poor, develop their potential; improve the socio-economic status of the community, reduce poverty and bring sustainable development with special emphasis on weaker and vulnerable groups of the society such as women, children, the downtrodden (SC and ST) and deprived poor.

Vision:

To show path to all the deprived people of the society that is just and practical being free from all types of discrimination guarantying equal rights and opportunities to all irrespective of caste, creed, sex and religion.

Aim:

To improve the quality of life of deprived classes with emphasis on women, children and youth.

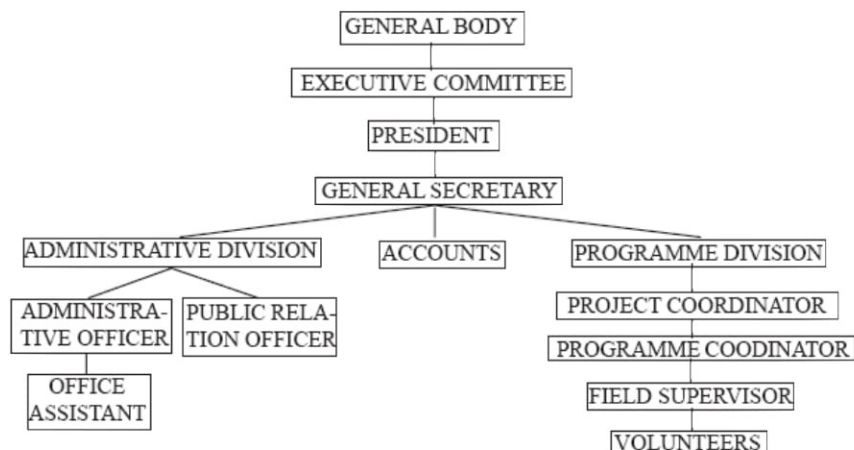

Objectives:

- To identify the problems of the weaker sections of the community,
- To prioritise the needs of these classes,
- To resolve them with available resources,
- To pursue an organised, systematic and holistic approach in resolving such issues.

Organization Structure:

The Executive Body is the supreme governing and administrative body of the organization and General Secretary is the Chief Functionary who is full responsible for managing the overall function and administration of the project. It has also an Advisory Committee comprising of qualified experts on the field of Health & Family Welfare, legal, social work, scientist, environmentalist, road safety expert etc. which is ready to give advice & guide the Executive Body & the General Secretary on policy making & provide technical inputs for planning intervention of all programmes. The General Secretary is the Chief Functionary of the Organization. The Organization is backed by a band of dedicated and highly motivated professionals who help implement various programmes of WCWS with true grit and gumption.

Science & Technology

Agrasar Lecture and Demonstration Programme on Water, Food and Climate Change

Steady rise in average world temperature over the last fifty years, also known as global warming, due to increased concentration of green house gases like carbon dioxide, methane, CHC etc. led by anthropogenic factors (such as burning up fossil fuel, indiscriminate industrialization) has posed a serious global challenge. It has already cast its adverse impact on ecology and environment. Other than increased presence of green house gasses causing air pollution and health hazards, there has been a rise in sea level and natural calamities which have resulted in climate change and in turn, has further deteriorated the ecosystem, affecting availability of fresh water and food.

In view of the seriousness of the problem, experts and policy makers across the globe have realised the significance of mitigating the adverse impact of climate change and taking up of appropriate adaptation measures. While countries have started action on it at the governmental and non-governmental level, education and awareness at every stage is the need of the hour. In this context, WCWS duly supported by Department of Science and Technology, Govt. of India, organized a series of lectures and demonstration programmes on water, food and climate change at the high school and college level. The main objective of the programme was to create scientific about change and its awareness among the students about climate adverse impact on our ecosystem, fresh water source, and on food grain output and food security. Besides, mitigation options and adaptation measures to be undertaken by countries and organizations were discussed in the light of the global summit on climate change held at Copenhagen. The topics were judiciously selected and were thrown light by

Promotion of Science Clubs

Eninent Scientist, Science Communicators Experts, Teachers & Science loving people have been taken interest for the noble cause organised by the Club. The spirit of science lies in the spirit of discoveries and inventions. According to experienced science teachers, the formation of science clubs is one of the most exciting and effective ways to instil scientific temperament in school children. It is through science clubs that they can truly feel the joy and adventure of scientific discovery. Therefore, to provide the students with organizational facilities that are usually necessary to carry on the science projects and related activities, WCWS has facilitated the process of forming science clubs in schools.
